SPANIARDS AT SAN FRANCISCO. First Biskaia Crew to Visit Western Port Since War. San Francisco, Dec. 27 .- An interesting arrival at this port was the Uruguayan training ship Ama Bogonakoa, 153 days from Glasgow, with a cargo of 3,600 tons of coal. While the ship files the flag of the South American country, there are no Uruguayans on board, all the officers and crew being Spaniards, mostly from the Province of Bis-kaia.

It is the first vessel manned by the Span-

Spaniards, mostly from the Province of Biskaia.

It is the first vessel manned by the Spaniards to visit this port since the war with iards to visit this port since the war with that country four years ago. None of them, according to the officers of the Bogonakoa, participated in the war, having been engaged in the merchant service.

The Ama Bogonakoa is a large fourmasted bark of 4,99 tons register, built at Dumbarton, Scotland, and owned by the Sota-Aznar Company, otherwise Roman de la Sota and Luis Aznar, business men of Bilbao, who have large interests at Montevideo, hence the registry of the ship under the flag of Uruguay.

Sota is a rich and philanthropic man, who conceived the idea of furnishing the means of giving practical instruction in seamanship to deserving applicants in one of his merchantmen, and providing, at the same time, for their ordinary scholastic education. So he has on board the Bogonakoa, in addition to the regular officers, a professor who instructs the young men in languages and other branches of learning.

There are fitty-three persons, all told, on the Bogonakoa, consisting of the capitain, three officers, the instructor, twenty apprentices, two quartermasters, carpenter, two salimakers, machinist, sixteen saliors, two apprentice sallors, two cooks and two walters. The commander is Capitain Don Tomas de Undabarrena, 25 years old, a graduate of the naval school of Bilbao; first officer, Eustaslo de Larrauri; second officer, Natalio de Larrauccechea; third officer, Fermin Aguirre; instructor, Juan de Cortabarrea y Cortabarrea. All the apprentices are already pilots, and some of them possess certificates as junior officers.

The Ama Bogonakoa is a new ship, finely fitted up, with very comfortable quarters for all hands, and is kept in a scrupulous leant, with a beam 43 feet and depth of 266 feet. Captain Undabarrena reports that the trip from Glasgow was uneventful save for seven weeks of bolsterous weather off Cape Horn. The ship may remain here several weeks.
